

ONLINE SEMINAR

"Limitations to the freedom of expression in the XXI Century"

FEBRUARY 24

18:00 - 19:30

Access Link

ID meeting 986 4513 4329

PROGRAM

Justification

Freedom is enshrined as a human right that must be protected. Although all human beings are born free and equal, endowed with conscience and subject to life in society, there have always been situations that endanger our freedom. Not only dictatorial governments, but also different forms of modern slavery are some of the threats to freedom that we are currently facing in different parts of the world. Other rights derive from the right to freedom, such as the right to freedom of conscience, expression, religion, education, family, association, etc. These are essential for social development and personal and collective good. Freedom also carries with it a sense of individual and social responsibility. Therefore, there is a relationship between freedom and ethics, since acting in freedom is not a mere impulse but rather implies an action that is carried out in conscience for one's own and common good.

Program

- 18:00 to 18:20 Josef Seifert: "Freedom of expression: from the legal limitation to the dangers of its oppression in the XXI Century"
- 18:20 to 18:40 Vicente Bellver Capela: "Digital rights and surveillance capitalism "
- 18:40 to 19:20 Debate: Dialogue with seminar attendees
- 19:20 to 19:30 Alfonso Ballesteros Soriano: Conclusions

BIO profiles:

Prof. Dr. Josef Seifert: Phd. in Philosophy. Founder of the International Academy of Philosophy (AIP). University of Salzburg, Austria

Prof. Dr. Vicente Bellver Capela: Professor of Philosophy of Law and Political Philosophy. University of Valencia, Spain

Prof. Dr. Alfonso Ballesteros Soriano: Professor of Philosophy of Law. Miguel Hernández University of Elche, Spain